Such a beautiful, ballet shoe pink colour, this is quite the most glorious rose I've tasted in ages. Classic crunchy-crisp and dry, it's a true Provence style in that it's beautifully aromatic, and saturated with cherry and raspberry notes, and spruiking loads of spice. It's fresh, frisky and fabulous to drink.

An exquisitely styled rosé, the delicately fragrant bouquet shows white stone fruit, watermelon, lemon peel, floral and subtle savoury notes. The palate delivers excellent concentration and focus, brilliantly enhanced by juicy mouthfeel and fine texture, finishing wonderfully long and delightfully dry. At its best: now to 2019.

Very pale pink colour, near colourless on the rim. The nose is elegantly proportioned with refined and intense aromas of delicate red berry fruit, red florals and minerals. The nose possesses an array of fragrances and is thirst-quenching. Dry to taste and medium-bodied, the palate has taut, delicate flavours of fine red berry fruits with fresh florals and nuances of mouthwatering minerals. Suggestion of nutty elements and hints of fresh herbs add detail. The mouthfeel is crisp with lacy acidity and very fine phenolic textures provide excellent linearity, carrying to a subtle, aromatic finish. This is a crisp, refreshing, mouthwatering dry Provence rosé with delicate fruit, floral and mineral flavours. Serve as an aperitif, with canapes and antipasto over the next 2 years. From Maison Saint Aix. A blend of Carignan, Grenache, Syrah and Cinsaut, 70% direct presses and 30% saignee, cool-fermented to 13.0% alc.

4 Stars, 93 Points & Wine of the Week

The colour is youthful salmon pink-purple, the aroma sweetly spicy with raspberry and background dried herb nuances. The palate is soft and fruity, flavoursome and charming, with a faint flick of sweetness in harmony with the wine. It finishes clean and dry, with richness and length. An impressive rosé which is drinking at its best now. Food: Baked ocean trout with sage, wrapped in prosciutto.

Light fruity, fragrant and fresh with delicate aromas of light red fruits - strawberry and cherry with a light rhubarb note. Light, crisp, dry with flavours of light red cherry, bing cherry and red apple. Plenty of acidity and a light lees note adding texture and finish. Drink now and through to early 2019.
